DULLES RESIGNATION--Commenting on the announcement of Central Intelligence Director Dulles' coming resignation, Radio Moscow commentator Vavilov says that Dulles' name "is linked with most of the international provocations and military ventures the United States has undertaken against other countries over the past nine years," and that during his tenure "wrecking and subversive activity were raised to the rank of U.S. state policy." Vavilov stresses that his resignation is "in essence an admission of the bankruptcy of the U.S. positions of strength policy." In a brief report, Prague's CTK states that President Kennedy wants to appoint in his place Fowler Hamilton, who "is said to be acquainted with and to have had experience in the activities of U.S. intelligence, having been a member during the last war."
